The University Spiritual Master Plan (see below) was developed by the Spiritual Master Planning Committee, which also supervises its now biennial evaluation. During 2013-2014, the committee consisted of: Trasa Roth, (Chair) CommUnity Programming Coordinator and Auxiliary Ministries; Susan Bungard, Religion Instructor and Accreditation Writer; David Cowles, Professor of Biology; Paddy McCoy, Campus Chaplain; David Richardson, Vice President for Student Life and Mission; Tyler Steffanson, Director of Institutional Research Dave Thomas, Dean of the School of Theology; Karl Wallenkampf (student), ASWWU Spiritual Vice President; and the WWU Church senior pastor was also invited.

In 2010, the Spiritual Master Planning Committee revised the plan as represented below, and the Spiritual Master Plan was approved by the university and WWU Board of Trustees. In 2012-2013, the Spiritual Master Plan Evaluation instrument was reconsidered by members of the WWU accreditation steering committee and Campus Ministries personnel. Discussions resulted in the instrument being redesigned for two main reasons. Primarily, the changes in the instrument were made to increase the objectivity and accuracy of the evaluation results, thus assisting the University in responding to the needs of the campus. In addition, modifications were intended to more specifically meet the expectations of the University's accrediting associations: the Adventist Accrediting Association and the Northwest Commission on Colleges and Universities. The Spiritual Master Planning Committee believes that the revised instrument will help the institution understand more clearly and meet more fully the spiritual needs of its students, faculty, and staff.

Walla Walla University Spiritual Mission and Master Plan

Walla Walla University is a Christian community of faith and discovery committed to

- Excellence in thought
- Generosity in service
- Beauty in expression
- Faith in God

In harmony with its overall mission, Walla Walla University is committed to embodying and reflecting a Seventh-day Adventist Christ-centered life in love, in truth, and in practice by both experiencing and extending the love of God through faith, wisdom, integrity, service, and worship – to the glory of God; in the spirit of Jesus. (1 Corinthians 10:31; Colossians 3:17)

- Faith - trusting in God as Creator, Redeemer, and Sustainer
- Wisdom – growing in spiritual knowledge and insight
- Integrity – exhibiting congruence between belief and practice resulting in respect for ourselves, others, and all of creation
- Service – demonstrating compassion on our campus, in our community, and in the world
- Worship – responding in love and gratitude to God with our hearts, minds, and souls
